Trade and Investment Promotion:

International trade policy and regulations

The specialist knowledge and experience of GIC's staff in international trade goes back over 30 years. We help governments, businesses and international organisations to understand and adjust to changes in trade and investment policies and regulations in order to benefit from new global trading opportunities.

Our services include:

- Analysis of tariffs, non-tariff barriers and other market entry rules
- Development of trade and investment policies for governments and regional organisations
- Advice on the effects of international trade and competition rules on domestic markets
- Advice and assistance on compliance with trade regulations
- Assistance with anti-dumping and anti-competition investigations

Please contact us for more information on how we can support you on international trade policy and regulations issues.
